Vets of Two Wars Throng City for VFW Convention

2 PARADES ON SCHEDULE FOR AREA CONCLAVE

'Cooties,' Fun Group, to Frolic Tonight; Auxiliary to Be Formed Here Sunday.

Hundreds of Veterans of Foreign Wars, representing two generations of fighting men, began arriving in Mansfield today for the two-day convention of the Tenth district of VFW.

Approximately 500 delegates and guests of VFW posts in northcentral Ohio are expected to come to the city to frolic and transact more serious business.

Meeting simultaneously with the men's organization will be the district auxiliaries which will highlight their sessions here with the formation of a Mansfield auxiliary chapter tomorrow.

Two parades are on the schedule, one by the "Cooties," VFW fun group, after a business session tonight, and another of all VFW groups about 3 p. m. Sunday.

After registration, members of the Military Order of Cooties (comparable to the Legion's 40 et 8 club) will convene at 7 p. m. today at the Memorial building for formal initiation into first, second and third degrees.

DECIDES CASE

Judge Rules Against Grocery Firm In Anti-Trust Case.

DANVILLE, Ill. —(AP)— The New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, and 28 officers and subsidiaries were convicted today of violating the federal anti-trust law.

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley who heard the prolonged trial without a jury found all defendants guilty on both counts of a criminal information which charged conspiracy to restrain trade in fruit products and "conspiracy to monopolize a substantial part of such products in interstate commerce."

The court's 117-page decision in the case followed 22 weeks of actual trial starting April 16, 1945.

Two Boys Create Big Crime Wave

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Two teenaged boys were turned over to Dayton police today after they confessed, Norwood Police Chief Charles Fritz said, committing an amazing number of crimes in southern Ohio.

Chief Fritz quoted the boys, 14 and 16 years old, as saying they had looted 850 automobiles, committed 16 burglaries and stolen 10 automobiles in recent months. They were arrested yesterday, Fritz declared, after being traced through a cigaret case found in a stolen auto.

100-MILE GALE SWEEPS GUAM, WREAKS HAVOC

Typhoon Rages for 12 Hours, Twisting U. S. Military Installations to Ruin.

GUAM —(INS)— A 100-mile an hour typhoon whipped across Guam today, causing millions of dollars damage to military installations and bringing injury to several 20th Airforce personnel.

The worst typhoon to hit Guam since 1910, the storm raged for twelve hours with such velocity that wind gauges along the 23-mile coastline were broken after registering 90 knots.

Airfields, warehouses, military living quarters and private residences were wrecked when the gale, accompanied by torrential rains, swept through the American community of 60,000 persons.

Air Field Hard Hit.

Only reported injuries occurred at the 20th Airforce's northwest field, which was hard hit by the storm. The crowded headquarters area at the field, including the newly-built 60-home dependents' project, was severely damaged. The residence of Maj. Gen. Francis E. Griswold, commanding general of the 20th, disappeared.

Rear Admiral Charles Pownall, governor of Guam and commander of the Marianas, announced that the navy hospital was demolished but that the patients had been removed to ships tied up in the harbor and were unharmed.

Naval warehouses and innumerable quonset living quarters of several thousand personnel became pieces of wreckage.

It is estimated that months will be required to effect a replacement in the third hazardous blow to hit American military installations in the Pacific this season. Iwo Jima and Marcus Islands were previously damaged.

BRINGS DELAY

Mist Hides Shattered Brink of Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(U.P.) —Officials of the Niagara frontier park commission waited for heavy mist to clear from the lower Niagara gorge today to determine how much rock had been shaken loose from the brink of the American falls by an earth tremor.

Robert L. Rice, jr., commission president, said there now appeared to have been two distinct rock slides which created a noticeable change in the contour of the 168-foot falls.

Marriage to Link Auto, Tire Heirs

AKRON—(AP)—The engagement of Martha Parke Firestone to William C. Ford, joining two families which have been part of the automobile industry almost from the start, was announced yesterday. No date was set for the wedding.

Miss Firestone is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone, jr., of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, and Ford is the grandson of Henry Ford, founder of the Ford Motor company. He is a son of Mrs. Edsel Ford and the late Edsel Ford.

Plenty of Beefsteak — In County Pastures!

By MARGUERITE MILLER

There's beefsteak aplenty in Richland county pastures but it's not for sale—at a loss.

Farmers contend they can't afford to sell their cattle at OPA ceiling prices when feed costs have advanced. Processors say they can't operate on the scanty profit between farmers' ceilings and ceilings on ready dressed meat. Retailers assert these are the reasons they can't get meat for their customers.

County Agricultural Extension Agent George B. Ganyard points to another factor in the meat scarcity. He says:

"We're going through a natural slump in meat now. During the high prices when OPA was off, the farmers marketed all the cattle they could, even some which was not ready for market. There are still plenty of cattle in Richland county but with lower prices, the farmers are holding the young cattle until they are fully developed."

However, many cattle now ready for market are waiting for buyers. For example, nine dry-fed shorthorns, each averaging 1,000 pounds, have been living on "borrowed time" for two weeks now on the R. B. Gardner farm, east of the city.

"I've been trying to get rid of those steers for two weeks now but nobody will buy them because the difference between the farmers' price and the dealers' price is too close," the farm owner said.

The cattle would bring $20.45 a hundred at prime ceiling level, four and one-half cents under the packer's ceiling to the retailer.

"The farmer can't afford to let his cattle go for less than ceiling because feed costs are too high," is the general contention.

Feed per ton cost $48 before the war. Now, farmers are paying $105 per ton.

BOARD REJECTS DAIRY CEILINGS

Decision Keeps Controls Off Butter, Cheese.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Dairy products went their way in a free market today but with butter and cheese prices under the wary eye of the price decontrol board.

In announcing a decision not to reimpose ceilings now, the board declared it would maintain vigilance over the dairy price trend and stay ready for any action which might be necessary.

A board official told reporters cheese and butter are the "sore spots" Chairman Roy L. Thompson had in mind last night when he said prices are "approaching the critical point."

The board nevertheless repeated its decision of a month earlier that milk, cream, butter, cheese, ice cream and other dairy items should remain free from OPA controls because there has been no "unreasonable price increase over June 30 ceilings plus subsidy."

Paul Porter, OPA administrator, who expressed disappointment at failure of the board to restore these controls a month ago, told newsmen he had nothing to say this time.

Along with its dairy decision the three-member board took public notice of protests against

HIT BY STORMS

Damaging Winds, Rain Sweep British Coastal Areas.

LONDON—(INS)— Furious gales and rainstorms which swept across southern coastal areas of Britain resulted today in the deaths of at least 10 persons and severe property damage.

The storms had their most disastrous effect in the ruin of vital crops.

Coming in the wake of extensive rainfall which already inundated farms and laid waste to numerous grain fields, the new storms and floods caused farmers throughout the English countryside to fear their harvest will be the worst since 1879.

Traffic Lights Won't Change So Often Now

Mansfield's downtown traffic signals have been changed again and at least one main intersection will be cleared in a move to speed the flow of through traffic.

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said the cycles on downtown lights have been lengthened 10 seconds, leaving them on green for 35 seconds and on red for the same time. They have been on red and green for 30 seconds each.

Next week the straight-through plan will be launched, probably at Fourth and Mulberry streets, Boals said.

The plan will prohibit parking on certain sides of the street at the intersection so that cars making left turns won't block cars going straight through or making right turns.

By prohibiting parking at certain points cars will have space to pull around cars preparing to make left turns, the traffic commissioner pointed out.

Prohibit Parking.

Parking will be prohibited 50 feet back from an intersection and the space will also serve as a bus stop, the commissioner said. Painted lines will indicate how cars are to pull around other vehicles, he said.

Boals said that "50 per cent of the traffic in the business section is held up by cars making left turns" although only 15 per cent of the traffic makes left turns. Seventy per cent drive straight through, he said.

The commissioner said that Mulberry street, from Fourth to Park avenue west, is one of the city's worst traffic bottlenecks.

He said if the straight through plan works at Fourth and Mulberry it will probably be extended to other intersections.

Traffic signals in the downtown area were recently changed from a staggered system—red, green, red, green, from block to block—to a synchronized system, with the signals all one "color" in one direction.

WEISS FINED ON 32 COUNTS

Former Holmes Sheriff Pleads Guilty to Indictment.

MILLERSBURG—Former Holmes county Sheriff Harry R. Weiss was fined $10 on each of 32 counts when arraigned today before Common Pleas Judge Elmo N. Estill on a charge of appropriating part of his deputy's salary.

His sentence followed his plea of guilty Friday afternoon after he had failed to enter a counter plea to a grand jury indictment.

Although Weiss resigned from office July 1 at the request of the county commissioners, he was a candidate for re-election. However, Judge Estill ruled that either conviction or a plea of guilty would make him ineligible for the office.

The ex-sheriff told the court that his plea of guilty was prompted by the serious illness of his mother. He explained that the plea would expedite the handling of the case and aid in his mother's recovery.

Following the state examiner's findings early in the summer, Weiss had repaid the $1,344.60, which, it was alleged, he appropriated from Mrs. Frances Close, former deputy.

TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE LOOMS

Workers Threaten to Walk Out Over Wage Dispute.

A nation-wide strike of Western Union company employes, represented by the Commercial Telegraphers Union (AFL), loomed today as J. A. Payne, chairman of CTU's general negotiating committee, announced the company had refused wage and job classification concessions demanded by CTU.

"This means a strike. An overwhelming majority of the locals have already recorded an approximately 95 per cent vote to strike against the company's action today," Payne telegraphed R. G. Clarke, president of Local 203-CTU who is also manager of the Mansfield Western Union office.

Clarke, whose local unit of the CTU is statewide with a membership of 418 workers in 96 cities, said he didn't know when the walkout will occur.

"That is up to CTU General Chairman Payne who must first confer with the international union office," Clarke said.

Breakdown of relations between the union and the company came

PRIESTS FLEE

Bishop Bares Terror Tactics In Yugoslav Zone.

TRIESTE — (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishop of Trieste and Capodistria, the Most Rev. Antonio Santin, said today that five Catholic priests have fled during the past 10 days from religious persecution in Zone B—that part of Venezia Guilia under Yugoslav occupation.

The bishop said an anti-Catholic campaign in Zone B appears to have started Sept. 11 with the abduction of the parish priest of the town of Gardossi, the Rev. Bonifacio Francesco.

According to eye witnesses, the bishop declared, Father Francesco was "ambushed" on a country road by six Yugoslav soldiers and an officer who took him away in a truck.

Dems Face Fight Over Party Rule

WASHINGTON—Henry Wallace, private citizen, threw down the gauntlet to the Truman administration today for a continuing battle over foreign policy.

Many politicians agreed that the developments presage a bitter struggle during the next two years for recontrol of the Democratic party.

The issue is what group will name the 1948 presidential nominee and write the policies to which the party will be committed in that election year.

What is often called the party's left wing includes Wallace, Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), the CIO-PAC and other elements which would go forward in social legislation than the remainder of the party.

The late Franklin D. Roosevelt held the factionc together suffi- held the factions together suffi- another at the polls.

Mr. Truman had tried to do the same, with some success up to now.

The ousted secretary of commerce told the department's employes in a farewell message he was resigning "in order that I may be free as a private citizen to continue to fight for world peace."

And in a nationwide radio address last night he declared that "winning the peace is more important than high public office. It is more important than any consideration of party politics."

He removed any doubt that he would battle for his "go-easy-with Russia" ideas which brought him into conflict with the state department and led President Truman to dismiss him from his official family.

"The success of any policy," Wallace said, "rests ultimately upon the confidence and the will of the people.

"There can be no basis for such success unless the people know and understand the issues—unless they are given all the facts—and unless they seize the opportunity to take part in the framing of foreign policy through full and open debate."

Child Loses Her Life In Cruel Game

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— Sally Guillen, 22 months old, was burned to death "in a cruel game" played by older children to test the child's bravery, her mother said today.

Sally's dress caught fire as she tried to duplicate the feats of other children by allowing lighted matches to be held against her.

She ran screaming home, where relatives beat out the flames with their hands and took her to General hospital, where she died yesterday.

Sheriff's officers began an investigation after the mother, Mrs. Catalina Guillen, said she believed her child was killed by playmates' pranks.

She said several neighborhood children between the ages of four and five had been holding lighted matches against other children to make them prove how much they could endure.

Two of her other children had shown her burn scars on their arms, she said.

Officers said they had not yet learned the names of the leaders of the game.

Purple Spuds Foil Black Marketeers

NEW YORK —(INS)— The government today wiped out any possible black market in potatoes bought for livestock feed by painting the tubers purple.

The department of commerce ordered that all potatoes bought to support its price program and resold for livestock feed must be doused with a harmless purple dye, which will identify them as surplus stock.

HOME RISE SLOWLY

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Greater Cleveland has added only 257 complete new homes out of 1,610 begun there this year, James Funaro, secretary of the Cleveland Home Builders association, told a city council housing committee yesterday. Funaro said soil pipe, nails, lath, plywoods and heating equipment shortages held up work.

COAST GUARD SET TO MOVE AIR VICTIMS

18 Persons, 14 Gravely Hurt, Awaiting Removal From Chill Wilderness.

GANDER AIRPORT, Nfld. —(AP)—Eighteen persons—14 of them gravely injured—lay wrapped in army bedrolls in the chill wilderness of northeastern Newfoundland today, awaiting a daring rescue att mpt by two U. S. coast guard helicopters.

Coast guard officials indicated that the first rescue attempt might be made early this afternoon and that there was a possibilty all survivors might be evacuated by nightfall.

The two dismantled helicopters arrived here today for the attempted rescue and workmen immediately began unloading them from transport planes for assembly.

(The coast guard in New York reported receipt of a message from Gander saying the ground rescue party at the scene had begun removing the crash survivors to a small plateau where the helicopters were expected to land and that at least two who were critically injured were expected to be brought out today.)

Team Aids Survivors.

Strewn around the victims were the bodies of 26 persons killed outright in the crash.

The rescue party, guided by a native Newfoundlander, reached the scene at dusk Thursday night after a harrowing, pell mell journey down the rock-strewn rapids of a nameless stream.

The first message they sent over their walkie-talkie radio transmitter, to a coast guard plane circling dangerously low to pick up the fading signals, was for plasma, morphia, water and blankets.

Capt. Samuel P. Martin, veteran explorer and former member of the Barnes hospital staff in St. Louis, Mo., led the rescue party to the grisly scene. He reported that none of the injured had died since the crash.

Lt. Cmdr. James Schrader of Chicago, pilot of one of the two amphibious Catalinas alternating on the operation, said smoke could be seen circling through the tree tops.

Returning from a mission of dropping additional supplies to the survivors, Schrader gave a dramatic account of the rescue operations.

He said the army team now on the spot reached the survivors by flying to a nearby lake, traveling by rubber lifeboats down dangerous rapids, and finally striking out overland.

The stream was slow and sluggish at the start, he said, but as it met other streams it became very swift.

"We could see them hit a rock and bounce back, and spin around many times, he said. "They were dumped into the water.

"Finally they seemed to get the knack of it—when they'd hit the rapids everyone would go over the side and lift the boat on their shoulders. They would climb back in when thef came to smooth water again.

SKIES TO CLEAR

Forecast of Rain Fails to Bring Any In City.

A fair and warmer weekend was predicted for the Mansfield area today with only a slight possibility of relief from the late summer drought.

Forecasters had predicted scattered showers over the state today, with considerable cloudiness, but the city hadn't received even a sprinkle by noon.

Highest temperature recorded in the state yesterday was at Perry where a summer-like 86 degrees was reported. At the Hayesville weather station, yesterday's high was 79 degrees while the low last night was 58 degrees. The mercury stood at 75 degrees at noon today.

THE LAND OF THE ENGLISH PEOPLE by Alicia Street will help you to understand and appreciate the people who are our nearest relatives in the family of nations. Simply and clearly she tells the story of early kings, of the many invasions that took place right down to the invasion of September, 1941 that didn't happen.

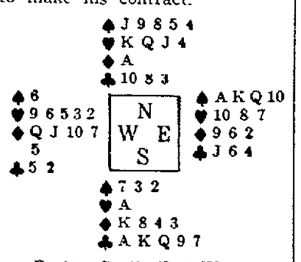

She draws a vivid picture of everyday people who, though speaking our language, seem sometimes very queer. They will seem less queer after you have read the book. There are many lovely photographs showing all the types of English scenery and historic places as well as the people themselves.

VALIANT, DOG OF THE TIMBERLINE by Jack O'Brien is an old book to some but it will be new to many readers of dog stories. The library has a new copy with illustrations by Kurt Wiese. The story is exciting, fires at night, sheep driven off the edge of a cliff, men eager for revenge, all those things make good reading.

There have been many queer machines invented, but probably the queerest of all were the "bats" in THE MYSTERY OF BATTY RIDGE by Allan Gregg. Reed and Ramsey of the Border Patrol were sent out on a mysterious mission to find and capture some "bats" that were ten times the size of any ordinary bat, that could talk a strange language, and that had some connection with a powerful gas that killed plants and made men and animals unconscious for hours. After grueling adventures they discovered what the "bats" were and how they worked and who was behind them.

Barclay On Bridge

Entry cards which can decide the fate of your contract are often hidden completely from the sight of the average player. They may exist away down the scale in a suit in which you possess a lot of top cards. The earnest seeker for them can find them, but not the fellow who just bulls along, raking in first the tricks that are obviously there for him to take without effort. While doing this, he may find himself blocked out of the additional tricks necessary to make his contract.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 NT

A more natural contract on this, from South's standpoint, would have been 4-Spades, after he heard the spade rebid of his partner. But he reckoned that he could play cards better than North and also that there was some value in having a diamond lead come up to his K. Actually 4-Spades could not be made, due to the trump bunch with East, whereas 3-No Trumps could be had South not butchered the hand.

West led the diamond Q, which the A won. South then roared through five tricks in clubs, plus his diamond K and heart A, then gave up the lead with a spade to the 9 and 10. East took three more spades, then led his diamond 9 back to West's J for the setting trick.

All that South had to do to make his contract was see the vital necessity of a re-entry to dummy to score those hearts. It existed in the club suit. He should have led to the heart A to unblock that suit on the second trick, then led the club 9, overplaying dummy's 10. If East refused to play his J, the hearts could have been run then. He probably would have played it and then scored three spades, returning a diamond to South's K. Then the club 7 to the 8 would have been an entry for the three hearts, and clubs would have finished the hand.

Your Week-End Question.

Do you know the difference in meaning betwen the technical terms "trump coup" and "grand coup"?

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

A HINT.

A hint is all that should be needed,
Provided it is promptly heeded.
—Old Mother Nature.

"What is wonderful?" squeaked the Mouse.

"Did I understand you to say that you are a grandfather?" asked Little Wobblenose, the small Rabbit, of his friend the Wood Mouse.

"Great-grandfather," squeaked the Wood Mouse. "Perhaps great-great-grandfather by this time. "

"It is wonderful," sad the small Rabbit admiringly.

"What is wonderful?" squeaked the Mouse.

"That with so many hunters always looking for you, you have lived to be a great-grandfather, perhaps a great-great grandfather," replied Little Wobblenose.

"It is all in knowing where to run, when to run, and doing it," squeaked the Mouse. "I never run without knowing just where I am going and the shortest way there," he added.

"But there is so much of everything everywhere," said the small Rabbit vaguely.

"What of it? All I need to know is all about the part of it in which I want to live, and that is a small part. I'm not a wanderer. I never go far from home. All I need is plenty of food that I can get without too much danger, and this I have without going far. You see, I know every stick, stone, bush, fern, tree, stump and log around here. Wherever I am I know just where the nearest hiding place is and the shortest way to reach it," explained the Mouse. He began drumming with one of his pretty white hands. The small Rabbit had not seen him drum before. He remembered now having several times heard this gentle drumming and had wondered what it was and what it meant.

"Were you drumming for me?" squeaked a new voice. There, peeping out from under some leaves, was soft-eyed, shy Mrs. Mouse. A moment later Little Wobblenose was alone.

For some time he squatted right where he was, a little brown bunch so still that had you come down the old cow path you might have almost stepped on him without seeing him.

"That's it," said he at last to nobody but himself. "It is knowing all about everything all around, just where everything is, if and how it can be used by me, and the shortest, safest way from any place to any other place. That Mouse knows. He proves it by being alive in spite of so many hunters looking for him. That is just what I'll do. I'll learn where every stick and stone and bush and tree and log and stump is in and around this bramble-tangle. I'll find every little path big enough for me to use, where it leads and what hiding places are nearest to it. I'll find out where all the feeding places are and the best way to get to each, and away from it if need be. I'll learn all these things so that wherever I am I will know just where I am and all about it."

Little Wobblenose began with the bramble-tangle where he had been living. He decided to make that his home. He moved back and forth along the several old Rabbit paths made by another Rabbit long ago. Some of these were partly closed by vines and other growing things. These he cut until every path was clear so that he could run along it in a hurry. He found where the brambles were most tangled, and with his sharp teeth he cut away places under the middle of them, places just big enough for him to sit in comfortably. Always there was a way out different from the way he entered.

When he had learned all there was to learn about his home bramble-tangle he went exploring outside. He went a little way in this direction, going there again and again until he knew every bit of it as well as he did his home bramble-tangle. Then he did the same thing in another direction and after that in other directions, but never farther than he needed to go for good eating. And every day he felt safer, more sure of just what to do should an enemy appear. But though he felt safer, and was safer, he never forgot to be afraid. One may feel safer yet no less afraid. It was so with the young Rabbit. All his life he would be afraid, but he had a better chance now of growing up.

PLAN LOCKER

Willard to Have Deep Freeze Plant By December.

WILLARD — Construction has been started in Willard on a frozen food locker plant, which will be known as the Willard Locker market.

The one story building of concrete blocks will provide 500 individual lockers to start, with room for 360 more to be added, and will be equipped with a Frigidaire refrigeration system.

The plant will be operated by three Norwalk men, A. E. Foos, D. E. Albright, and Earl Perry and will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000, it is reported. Four lots have been purchased just east of the high school building, and it is planned that two will be used for the building and the other two for parking. It is expected that the plant will be ready for use in December.

How to Cook Well

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
(AP Food Editor)

FOR years, housewives and cooks in general have been begging for a really basic cookbook. There are a lot of good cookbooks, well and clearly written, but most take for granted that the user knows something about cooking.

Now, at last, a basic cookbook which really explains the hows and whys of cooking has been written. It is called "How To Cook Well" and was written by Ann Roe Robbins. It contains the best and most complete glossary of cooking terms I have ever seen. It has a chapter on utensils which not only tells you what are the essential ones to buy, but gives you a complete description of what each one is with illustrative sketches of a good many.

"How To Cook Well" contains a chapter on bread-making which will open the eyes and extend the knowledge of even fairly experienced cooks. It tells you why breads rise, why certain batters and doughs act the way they do, what are the various types of leavening—and why they work, or if they go wrong why they do that too. In this chapter is an explanation of why its easy to make good popovers (which it is), that ought to be a comfort to everybody!

There are also a lot of good, sound recipes for various dishes in the book, with special touches which will delight anybody who likes to eat, for Ann Roe Robbins is a gourmet cook, and, happily, willing and able to share her knowledge with the rest of us. Here are two recipes from her book, quoted with permission:

Special Pot Roast

5-6 pound bottom round
1 large can tomatoes
2 bay leaves
Sprig of parsley
2 large onions, peeled and thinly sliced
1 tablespoon kitchen bouquet
1 thin slice lemon
1 tablespoon butter
Salt, pepper

Melt the butter in a heavy frying pan and brown the beef on all sides. Then put it into a deep saucepan which has a cover. Add all the rest of the ingredients except the salt and pepper. Cover and cook over a very slow fire. Turn the meat every half hour and add a cup of water in all, a little at a time. Add salt and pepper after the meat has cooked for two hours. Cook 50 minutes for each pound of meat. Remove the meat and put it on a hot platter. Blend two tablespoonfuls of flour with ¼ cup of cold water, stir until all the lumps are gone and then add to the gravy, stirring all the while. Season with ½ teaspoonful each of powdered thyme and celery salt; ¼ cup sherry may be added if you wish. Cook until the gravy thickens, which takes about 2 minutes. Strain and pour over the meat. This meat is good either hot or cold.

The chapter on vegetables in "How To Cook Well" is long and excellent. For each vegetable there is material on how to buy, how to prepare, and how to use, followed by special recipes. Here's one:

Boiled Onions With Lemon Parsley Sauce

1½ pounds small white onions
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoonfuls minced parsley
Juice of 1 lemon
Salt, dash of cayenne

Peel the onions and cook whole in boiling salted water for 20-30 minutes or until tender but still whole. Drain well. Add the butter, lemon juice, parsley and cayenne. Toss over low heat until well mixed and serve at once.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

TWO YOUNG aviators had had a couple too many in the local tavern and got lost on their way back to the Orlando Air Base.

Suddenly one of them stopped and said, "Hey, Tom, I think we've gotten into a cemetery. Here's a gravestone."

"Whose is it?" asked Tom.

The aviator lit a match, peered at the stone, and said, "I don't recognize his name, but he sure lived to a fine old age—225."

"Wow," ejaculated his friend. "Who was it, Methuselah?"

The aviator lit another match. "No," he reported. "It was some jerk named Miles to Miami."

Joseph Fliesler told me the story about the fellow who decided to sell a long-treasured letter signed by Thomas Jefferson. When the deal was over, the buyer said, "I'd have given you $50 more if it wasn't for those stains. Looks like somebody used ink eradicator on part of this document."

"That was me," said the seller. "A fool named Button Gwinnet or something wrote 'See me about this' across the bottom, but I managed to get it all off."

Drive carefully tomorrow—and treat the old car like the good friend that it has proved to be.

Nothing has been heard of it, but wouldn't this be a fine time to proclaim a national "Eat Vegetables" week?

According to Paul Porter, OPA boss, there'll be more beef by late October—which, surprisingly, is just in advance of election day.

Henry Wallace Is Now Privileged To Advocate 'Left Wing' Policies

RESIGNATION of Henry A. Wallace as secretary of commerce does no more than mark the end of a thrill-packed chapter in current American history, with the end of the story still far ahead.

Yesterday's action by President Truman, in demanding Wallace's resignation, provided the final dramatic touch to an episode that had been holding world attention for seven days—introduced by Wallace's open rebellion against United States foreign policy which had been enunciated by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, generally regarded as the nation's official spokesman on this delicate subject.

Appearance of presidential sanction of Wallace's views, as related to this country's attitude toward Great Britain and Russia, tended to complicate what immediately developed into an embarrassing situation, with quick alignment of Byrnes and Wallace supporters, and with President Truman in the middle—scarcely realizing what it was all about.

From the politician's point of view—that of Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic national committee—the break is particularly unfortunate, as Wallace had been depended upon to hold the so-called "left-wingers" in line . . . these extending all the way from radical Communists, through the considerable group of big-name "intellectuals" to the groping "parlor pinks" who egotistically think they think.

Actually, what has been called the "get tough with Russia" policy of the United States, is no such thing. In reality is no more than an expression of the firm determination of this country to stand on principles which reflect the beliefs of Americans that justice should determine the international course in attempting to safeguard the world against future wars.

During the progress of war the United States, Great Britain and Russia presented a united front against the common enemy, and it was earnestly hoped that this unity would continue through the years required to build the foundations of permanent peace. But Russia is unaccustomed to maintaining friendly relations with other nations. Hers has been a long, hard road from savagery to the portals of civilization, and the suspicions engendered during centuries of struggle for survival cannot be allayed in the short time that has elapsed since the German invaders were driven from Russian soil.

The idealism reflected in Wallace's "go easy with Russia" attitude collides head-on with the Soviet show of stubbornness in refusing to co-operate with what must be regarded as the more enlightened thought of other of the United Nations—which is the sticking point in current negotiations.

Obstruction has been the keynote of Russian participation in postwar affairs and it has become obvious that such an attitude cannot be conducive to agreements which will assure permanent peace and the friendly relations that could be made mutually beneficial.

Now that Henry Wallace can speak as a "private citizen," freed from the restraint rightly imposed on one who might be mistaken as a spokesman of the administration, the next chapter in this exciting story may be expected to reveal the political repercussions attendant upon the changed situation, as the last of the ardent New Deal advocates leaves the president's cabinet.

Return To 'Free Market' Urged

WRITING in the New York Times, Henry Hazlitt said: "We are today operating under a price control law that is badly drawn and full of inconsistencies. . . . Supply and demand come into balance only at a price. That price is the one established in a free market. To hold any commodity below its free-market price is almost necessarily to make the supply of it smaller than the demand. . . .

"The way to decontrol is to decontrol. We must begin sometime and somewhere. If the Price Decontrol Board allows meats, milk and grains to go back under controls . . . it will be taking a backward step."

Since that was written, the PDB has taken that "backward step" so far as meat is concerned. It has reinstated subsidies—that economically vicious practice whereby all taxpayers pay part of the cost of what you, as an individual, buy.

It was obvious during the debate over extension of the OPA that congress clearly intended that all commodities be decontrolled as rapidly as possible. It's equally obvious now that that intent is not being carried out. High OPA officials are attempting to exercise full war powers that no longer exist.

Prices must eventually find their own level in a free market. Normal processes of competition are, in the long run, the protector of the consumer.

Reduced Income From Investments

RAILROADS, in many instances handling their heaviest peace time loads, are dipping into cash reserves to meet deficits. Because of increased costs of labor, coal, other supplies and equipment, investors are realizing 1.65 per cent returns from railroad stocks, or less than half of pre-war periods.

Many colleges, scientific research bodies, cultural and charitable organizations with endowments based on railroad stocks will be forced to curtail programs. Individuals whose incomes come largely from such sources, will also be affected. Returns from some other industrial investments have fallen similarly.

Here, indeed, is a paradox: during a boom period in American economy, with prices of practically everything soaring, many incomes are cut drastically.

Word comes that contractors in Japan "are building American-style houses by the thousands"—and, by the way, what are "American style houses" just now?

Scientists never relax. Some St. Paul chemists have just come up with the secret of a more permanent "permanent wave."

SOME STERNNESS NEEDED AT HOME, TOO

Men of Real Ability Continue To Sidestep Vital Government Posts

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—In the closing days of the congress that adjourned nearly two months ago, a victory was snatched out of what had seemed an almost certain defeat. The house and senate agreed on a bill putting the control of atomic energy under a civilian commission.

The weeks have come by and yet the members of that commission have not been appointed.

The decisions in this matter so vital to the United States are being taken by default. At the great Oak Ridge plant, military men are still in command, issuing orders on a day-to-day basis.

To visitors who have questioned him about it, President Truman has confessed his helplessness. He has launched into a most familiar theme, the unhappy plight of a president forced to get on the telephone and plead with men to take essential jobs.

For the five places to be filled on the atomic commission, he has had thus far two acceptances. Both are able men but they would scarcely be described as men of the first rank. They are more or less unknown to the public. The president has had at least two refusals for the all-important chairmanship.

This is a cruel dilemma. No one can get around that. It is not merely the president's personal problem. If it is actually true that men of the first rank will not accept essential government service because of their preoccupation with their own affairs, then the nation is in a bad way.

But certain questions inevitably arise as to the president's approach to this dilemma. Perhaps if, instead of pleading, he commanded, he might get better results. Perhaps if he went further afield, instead of trying to reshuffle the well-worn Washington counters, he might have greater success. There must be many men of ability who have never been put to the test.

Then, too, there is the question of confidence and loyalty. When they accept important government office, men of the first rank must feel that they will have the backing of their chief.

The episode of the Wallace speech put a sudden and dramatic spotlight on this issue of confidence. No one would dream of accusing the president of deliberately withdrawing his support from one of his lieutenants. He is not capable of that kind of intrigue. His fault lies in his unfailing desire not to offend—in his amiability. It may seem cruel to call it a fault but in a president it must be so labeled.

While the Wallace speech drew the headlines, another and somewhat similar incident occurred which throws more light on this question of confidence. The president wrote a letter to John G. Winant, U. S. member of the United Nations economic and social council, directing him to make a survey of natural resources in this country with a view to determining the degree of help which we could be counted on to give in the reconstruction of devastated Europe and Asia. In that letter, the president instructed Winant to study the availability of atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

This seemed to overlap the sweeping authority given to Bernard M. Baruch on all atomic matters. Baruch's associates feared that it would weaken his prestige at a moment when international negotiations on atomic control are balanced on a knife edge.

While we here at home do not take too seriously the internecine feuds that go on in our government, those outside the boundaries of the United States study authority and prestige with microscopic care.

Baruch is the American representative on the U. N. commission to work out some form of international control of atomic energy.

He has succeeded in winning wide acceptance for the control plan he originally proposed. If there were any question of his authority to negotiate for such a plan on behalf of his country, the picture would change very rapidly. There is, of course, no such question. But the president, in his letter to Winant, raised what seemed to be the shadow of a doubt.

What President Truman needs above everything else is effective staff work within the White House. A co-ordinator—a general staff officer with broad authority—might prevent some of these lapses. Such an officer could scarcely sit at the president's elbow to restrain his amiability.

But he could point out the consequences of that amiability and thereby, perhaps, persuade the president to check his own generous impulses.

Various Causes of Over-Weight.

MANY overweight people have an idea that their excess poundage is due to the fact that too much water is retained in the body. In some cases this may indeed be true.

It has been noted that just before the regular periods, some women gain as much as 12 pounds, due to temporary retention of water in the tissues, water which is usually eliminated following the periods.

According to Dr. Max A. Goldzieher of New York, even larger amounts of water may be retained by people in whom the accumulation of weight is low and gradual.

Cause Unknown.

Unfortunately, at the present time the cause of this retention of water is not known. There is evidence, however, to show that the functioning of the body's system of ductless glands may have something to do with it.

Under the influence of some of the powerful chemicals which the body manufactures for its own use, certain tissues, particularly the fat cells lying just under the skin, seem to increase their capacity to take up water.

Usually, when this occurs, salt is also caught and held in the tissues. Of course, in some patients the source of this retained water is obvious. They drink larger amounts of fluid than the body can dispose of in the normal way, either because they eat too much salt or because they are always thirsty.

In others, however, water retention cannot be explained in this way because they drink no more than average amounts of fluid.

Regulation of Functions.

We know that the chief use of the secretions formed by certain glands is the regulation of different body functions, and recent research work indicates that several of them have a distinct effect on the way in which the body uses salt and water.

Thus, when persons are overweight, there is always a need for a careful study by a physician to determine if some disturbance of the glands of internal secretion may not be a factor in producing excess weight, through its effect on water retention.

It is true that most overweight persons can reduce by proper dieting but there are some in whom treatment with glandular extracts will be of value.

The OPA Shackles.

The ominous developments of the restored OPA's ill-advised price ceilings have made themselves felt to every American even more quickly than the most pessimistic had believed possible. The end-result of OPA's interference in free markets could never be doubted for a moment, but that the nation's meat should disappear so suddenly and so completely is a shock even to those who knew it would be swift in coming.

If there has ever been any question that OPA lacked every conceivable virtue for operation in a free economy, that question has now been effectively dispelled. And unless the secretary of agriculture or the decontrol board acts quickly to remedy the desperate situation now facing the country the only remaining alternative will be a special session of congress to undo as rapidly as possible the evil that has been committed.—Columbus Dispatch.

ODD FACT

The term "almighty dollar" was introduced for the first time by Washington Irving in his book, "Creole Village."

Summary of Week's Happenings

Wallace Resigns From Cabinet As Climax To Truman's Hectic Week

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE FALL American political campaign is off to an early start. Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace blew the lid off with a bang in a speech criticizing American foreign policy which had loud repercussions at home and abroad.

Things happened fast during the next few days, with Wallace first announcing that he would continue making the same sort of speeches, then announcing cancellation of scheduled speeches, and finally—as a grand climax—resigning his cabinet post yesterday, after being asked to do so by President Truman.

Europe has learned with dismay that almost anything can happen during an American political campaign and usually does. Jittery Allies feared the U. S. war effort would fall apart when F. D. R. and Dewey began blasting each other with political blockbusters. But Europe still has not learned how to interpret political events on the American scene, so very different from its own, nor does it understand how a cabinet officer can criticize national policy without being asked to resign.

What made the incident particularly upsetting abroad was that President Truman approved the Wallace speech before it was delivered. Two days later he disavowed it as administration policy, explaining that he had approved only Wallace's right to make it.

No British Spectacles.

In his speech Wallace proposed that the U. S. be more understanding with Russia and that the Soviets be permitted an unmolested sphere of influence in eastern Europe.

What disturbed the English, particularly, was Wallace's warning that "to make Britain the key to our foreign policy would be . . . the height of folly." He charged that British imperialistic policy in the Near East, alone, would lead the United States straight to war.

Wallace's slant on foreign affairs was bared in a July 23 letter to the president, written in answer to a request for all cabinet officers to submit their views on foreign policy. His letter had disappeared from White House files, Wallace said, and was slated for publication in a syndicated column. Although the president disapproved, the department of commerce made the letter public in a mix-up.

The July 23 letter went far beyond Wallace's New York speech in criticism of the U. S. diplomatic approach to Russia. In it he advocated junking of the Baruch atomic control plan as "unworkable," a right-about-face on American postwar armament program and building up of military bases abroad, the granting of reasonable security guarantees to Russia, even at the risk of epithets of "appeasement."

Advised Russian Loan.

He also advocated a loan and establishment of trade treaties with Russia.

Wallace asserted that the Soviet postwar expansion was "small change" compared with the chain of American military bases around the world. He said that America was taking the lead in a world armament race that would lead inevitably to World War III, an atomic holocaust which might wipe out civilization.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes refrained officially from comment but Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, his chief Republican adviser in Paris, observed caustically: "We can only cooperate with one secretary of state at a time."

Almost overlooked in the furore over his criticism of British-American policies was Wallace's criticism of Russia. In his speech text, Wallace declared that Russia must not use Germany as a tool against western Europe, and that it should stop teaching that Communism must ultimately triumph, by force if necessary, over democratic capitalism.

Wallace was the last of the Roosevelt New Dealers in the Truman cabinet.

At Home

More Strike Tests.

The next 30 days may pose another, perhaps decisive test for the stabilization policies the president adopted during the first year of postwar readjustment. Solution of individual strikes like those in maritime and trucking industries is only a part of the story if the cause for labor-management uncertainty remains.

That basic problem is the wage-price issue and it is not yet settled. The government's goal is to keep wages and prices in a rough balance until full production can ease the natural economic laws of supply and demand. At stake is whether there will be a second round of strikes over more pay to keep up with rising prices.

New wage disputes loom in the automobile, meat packing, oil and rubber industries.

CIO View of Business.

President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico observed recently that the modern age was one in which the strong appeared to be getting stronger and the weak becoming more helpless than ever.

Economists of the Congress of Industrial Organizations hold much the same views, at least insofar as American business is concerned. They contend that American economic power is becoming concentrated primarily in five big financial institutions. The Big Five, according to CIO, are the Morgan, Mellon, Rockefeller and Dupont families, and the Cleveland banks.

These, with three other "money blocs" represented by the Kuhn-Loeb firm and Boston and Chicago banks, were described as controlling 106 of the 250 largest manufacturing and non-financial corporations in 1943-44, the experts said.

Union economists charged that monopoly interests were "maintaining artificial scarcity in order to keep prices high."

Abroad

Drawn and Quartered.

American-occupied Germany is being plagued by a rising wave of crime, gang lawlessness and violence as the bite of hunger and economic doldrums affects both Germans and displaced persons.

In Greater Hesse, for instance, a weekly report showed 3,389 reported violations, of which one-half were thefts. Of the thefts, 23 per cent involved food.

The causes are not hard to find. The average weight of German civilians, according to Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, U. S. European theater commander, has dropped to the lowest point since occupation began.

Housing and sanitation are dangerously inadequate in many areas, he said. Food has declined so much that excessive morbidity and mortality from infectious diseases has resulted.

Administration of all occupied Germany as a single economic unit has been proposed by the U. S., but the French and Russians thus far have refused to participate.

France's Dilemma.

Postwar France, struggling with economic and political uncertainty, is an uneasy country caught in the east-west struggle for domination of Europe. People are disturbed by rumors that civil war will break out if the proposed constitution is accepted—that revolution will occur if it is not. Fantastic as these rumors seem to Americans, some French people are stocking up on what food they can get "to be ready for the trouble."

Indications multiplied that Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who stepped down as interim president of France in a huff last January, is planning a return to the political arena within the next few weeks, which some observers believe may be critical for both France and western Europe.

It appears almost certain that De Gaulle will head opposition at the October referendum on the new constitution for the Fourth Republic which the provisional legislature is now writing. The charter differs little from the constitution rejected in last May's referendum.

Pint-Sized Powder Keg.

One of the biggest little powder kegs in Europe is Trieste, Adriatic port which Yugoslavia demanded as spoils of war from Italy.

After lengthy disagreement, the Big Four compromised by agreeing to internationalize the area. Britain and the U. S. wanted Trieste administered by a United Nations commission but Russia demanded Trieste be ruled by a local commission under supervision of the Security Council itself in which Russia held a power of veto.

While Italian and Yugoslav civilians clashed in Trieste itself, tension rose between Yugoslav troops on one side of the border and American and British occupation forces on the other.

Farmer's Diary: "The Meat Problem."

A FARMER I know had just returned from Columbus. "I took five veal calves down," he said. "They wouldn't take 'em here, at ceiling price, even if I butchered 'em, because they'd be working for nothing. Down there they offered me 12 cents a pound. I couldn't sell 'em for that—so I just left 'em down there, with a friend who tried to help me out. Those calves cost me 20 cents a pound, I reckon, counting feed at $4.50 and $5.00 a hundred weight. Why the government would put a ceiling on a man's livestock, so he'd lose every time he had to sell, and the price of feed go free, is more'n any farmer I know can understand.

"Things appeared to go all right in June when OPA was dead. In wartime there mighta been reason for it, but in time of peace it oughta remain a corpse. A man's a lot better off let alone to do his own thinking . . . folks are being pushed around that were smart enough to run their own business thus far, and like it. Seems to me we're driftin' into just what we fought the war to get rid of . . ."

A FRIEND of mine who has a stand in city market saw me looking at the empty showcases where the meat is usually displayed.

"It's a calamity," he said. "Twenty-six years I've been here at this same stand and never before nothing like this! We can't make a profit at ceiling regulations, and in one day our meat is all gone—like that!" he snapped his fingers. "Even if we could get the meat, and keep on, pretty soon we go broke for funds to go ahead. Five markets are closed in this same building today. Look there . . . three meat cutters slicing chops from one piece of pork. All the fresh meat they've got! Ain't it awful? We will hold a protest meeting tonight . . . we are going to shut up shop and save expenses. We are going to write to President Truman and the congressman and the governor . . . such dumb laws have got to be changed . . . that's what we all know . . .".

"GEE, this is good gravy," remarked one of the boys at supper. "Mashed potatoes and gravy, but no meat! How'd you do it, Mom?"

"Browned some flour in drippings from the meat we ate last winter—any kind of fat will do—and added the potato water, and seasoning. My grandmother used to do it—to save butter when cooking for a big family."

TYGERS EDGE EAST IN VICIOUS BATTLE

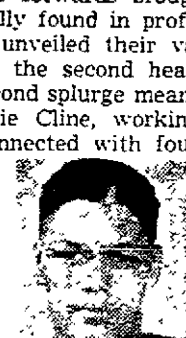

Cline's Four Passes Make Victory Margin

By FRED THARP, News-Journal Sports Editor.

Mansfield Senior high school footballers survived a vicious battle last night to keep their 1946 victory skein intact at the expense of a powerful Cleveland East aggregation, 7 to 6, before 6,800 fans at Stadium field.

Both burly pigskin squads played a brand of hard charging and tackling football seldom seen on a scholastic gridiron with Coach Paul Snyder's having a slight edge. Time and time again the Tyger forwards brought Blue Bomber ball-carriers down with force usually found in professional encounters.

The Tygers unveiled their vaunted ozone attack for just about two minutes in the second heat, and that 120-second splurge meant the game. Ollie Cline, working from the T, connected with four straight passes to set the stage for the winning counter and then shelved his throwing arm for the remainder of the tilt.

CLINE

All the scoring came in a three - minute period late in the second quarter with East hitting paydirt first. "Muff" Matusa capped a 30-yard drive with a short burst over center to chalk up the counter. An aroused gang of Bengals swarmed through the East line to smash the attempted placement.

The Snydermen then turned on the offensive heat and quickly put the visitors in the back seat. Ralph Majors returned Big Bill Goettling's kickoff 20 yards to the Mansfield 45 but lost five yards on a sweep.

Cline then started threading the needle with his accurate heaves. He hit Ralph Majors for 10-yards in the flat and then tossed one to Al Henke down the middle. It was good for 16 yards and a first down on the 34.

Ralph Majors caught the next toss and streaked 28 yards to the seven. Another Cline-Majors aerial put the pigskin on the two-yard stripe and Majors took the ball from Cline on a quick-opener off the T to tie the score.

Ross Frisbee split the uprights for the seventh and deciding point.

A severe case of "fumbleitis" plagued the Bengals throughout the contest. They fumbled the first two times they got the ball in the first quarter and East recovered both times. The second pigskin exchange gave East the ball on the Tyger 35.

Four plays picked up a first down but the Bengals stiffened and took the ball on downs on the 18-yard stripe. The remainder of the first period was played in Mansfield territory and East punched to the 15 in the middle of the second heat.

After losing yardage on two plays, Cline punted and the ball rolled dead on the Tyger 30. Bill Vihrik lost five and Goettling passed to Carl Taseff for a first down on the 19. Matuza and Taseff drove to the 14 and Mansfield was penalized to the one-yard line for unnecessary roughness. The touchdown came on the next play.

Early in the third period East threatened again after Goettling returned a Mansfield punt 16 yards to the 34. The Bombers picked up 24 yards on six plays but the Tygers held for downs on the 10.

East tried a desperation passing attack in the last quarter but Goettling took a terrific beating from the hard-charging Bengal forwards and none of his five tosses came close. Bob Rondy and Majors intercepted passes to nullify East drives.

The Blue Bombers, victors over Cleveland Shaw last week, were penalized 94 yards during the contest, 44 for for a slugging infraction late in the game.

With Matuza leading the attack, East outgained Mansfield on the ground 121 to 109 yards while the Tygers had 59 in the air to 16 for the visitors. Kenny Horvath led the Tyger ground-gainers with 49 yards in 10 tries.

End Al Henke and Dave Wentz, carrot-topped center, stood out on defense for the Snydermen. Mansfield rolled over Marion Harding, 33 to 13, last week and meets Sandusky here next Friday.

from the tyger lair

By EL TIGRE

"We were lucky to win—one of the best teams the Tygers have ever met,"—Paul Snyder, head coach, Mansfield Tygers.

"A really good game, and one of the hardest fought high school contests I've ever witnessed,"—Gregory "Greg" Conley, East Cleveland Blue Bomber mentor.

Outstanding for the visitors was 175-pound chunky right halfback "Muff" Matuza, who shone on defense and was an offensive threat. He carried 13 times for 49 yards. Out three times with injuries, but in there when the final whistle was blown.

* * *

An innovation at half-time was the introduction of the "Tiger" to the 6,800 fans, spotlighted from the roof of the press box while the arcs were turned out—or should we say "Tigerette."

* * *

Stymied most of the evening along the ground, the Tygers took to the air with a vengeance in the second period. Four aerials in succession were completed for 10, 16, 18 and five yards, the drive culminating in a TD from the two with Ralph Majors going over on a quick-opening play from the T.

PRESS BOX PERCEPTIONS— The crowd at attention as the national anthem was played by the Tygers' red and blue 68-piece marching band. . . . Bill Doolittle, Ohio State's best blocking back, making like he was going to run the sticks for the evening. . . . The East Cleveland cheerleaders "praying" for a conversion after the Blue Bomber touchdown. . . . Big bulky John Kabealo, one-time line-smashing fullback at OSU, who was umpire. . . . He, too, "raved" about "one of the best high school games" he's ever seen. . . . At half-time the Tyger band playing "The Bells of St. Mary's," led by the glockenspiels (that's right, folks, those things that look like a miniature xylophone, but played upright, if you know what we mean) . . . led by J. Merton Holcombe, director . . . followed by "Hold That Tiger," which seemed a little inopportune. . . . And the announcer at the mike of the field speakers telling the crowd that the band had a marching cadence of 136—the army marched at 120, if we remember correctly. . . . Dave Wentz, forward-wall lightweight, doing a bang-up defensive job. . . . And finally the overflow crowd seemingly reluctant to leave after the game—just "playing" it all over again.

RAMS OUTCLASS OBERLIN IN FINAL TWO QUARTERS

By BRUCE M'GINTY

OBERLIN—Although completely outclassing a strong Oberlin team in the second half, the Mansfield Madison eleven could not overcome a 13-point first-half advantage and lost a hard-fought contest 13 to 12 here last night.

A pass interception by Captain Jack Cleckner set the stage for the first touchdown and the second TD culminated a 72 yard drive. Substitute halfback Ken Gabor went through center on a 10-yard plunge for the first score and the second 6-pointer resulted when Dick Ernsberger cut off tackle from the two yard stripe.

Both of Eldridge's passes for the extra point were incomplete.

Oberlin's points came in the first half. Behr, triple threat back, passed to Captain Wigton 18 yards for the first score and then heaved another aerial for 35 yards with Wigton on the receiving end. Fullback Helke's kick for the extra-point after the second score was good.

Madison accounted for 12 first-downs to eight for the opposition, totaled 217 yards from running and passing to Oberlin's 209. However Oberlin completed five out of 12 attempted aerials for 96 yards, while DeHaven's aggregation completed one pass for 20 yards. Madison intercepted two of Behr's rocket throws and had one intercepted.

Losing the ball on downs after a 70 yard drive, to the Oberlin four yard line, when the Rams were penalized, Cleckner made a spectacular dive to intercept Behr's pass on Oberlin's three yard line. Then Gabor plowed through center carrying five Red and White players with him to pay-dirt.

The second drive started on the Rams' 28. Jackie Herr went through center for eight yards, making a first down on the 42.

It was Herr again on the next play when he picked up five off tackle, and Gabor made it first down on a reverse. Brown then threw the lone successful pass to Herr for 20 yards and another first down. In the closing minutes of the game with the ball resting on the Oberlin 25, the Red and White were penalized twice in succession for 10 yards and it was Madison's ball on the five yard stripe. Here, Ernsberger went off tackle to score standing up.

Oberlin came back with a desperate aerial attack, but the powerful Rams held them in check and the game ended on the Oberlin 39.

City News 11 Opens Tonight

The City News semi-pro football team, composed entirely of ex-servicemen, opens its season tonight against the VFW of Marion, on the Marion Harding high school field at 8:30.

Without a News team since 1941, Manager Fred Rizzo anticipates a big season with the squad that answered his call.

The tentative line-up for tonight will have E. Dials and A. Osgar at ends, M. Miller and J. Heiser at tackles, G. Bucher and P. Risser, guards, V. Heiser, center, with P. Bautz, signal caller, M. Harner and B. Anderson, halfbacks, and J. Butler fullback, in the backfield.

Most of the squad played ball at either Mansfield or Madison and are not newcomers to the lacal fans. Other members of the team are J. Miles, H. Blank, R. Wharton, B. Laubie, S. Musille, H. Au, G. Au, H. Pittenger, J. Pfaler, and F. McQuiston.

Carey Overpowers Mt. Gilead, 19-0

MT. GILEAD—The Carey high school grid aggregation overpowered Mt. Gilead on the Carey field last night, 19 to 0.

Don Wedge, hard-driving Carey fullback, was the offensive star of the contest. He drove for two touchdowns on short plunges and passed to Dennison for the third. Donelson added the extra-point on a place-kick.

Carey made 14 first downs to four for Mt. Gilead.

Shelby Whippets Rout Willard In Northern Ohio League Tilt

SHELBY—The Shelby Whippets went into the win column here last night in their opening Northern Ohio league grid game against Willard, 35 to 13, with Coach Al Fendrick using three complete teams to rout the Railroaders.

Appearing for the first time in their yellow and black uniforms, Coach Fendrick's charges scored in every period but the third. Stanton Jones, Shelby substitute halfback, kicked five straight placements for extra points to bring his season total to six out of six.

Shelby made 17 first downs, Willard eight.

The Whippets scored early in the first period after intercepting a Willard pass. A sustained drive of 43 yards ended in the pay dirt with Bill Keiser crossing the goal line from the visitors' two-yard marker. Jones' placement made the score 7 to 0.

Coach Raymond Richards' team then took the ball and on the second play Fullback Marlin Roose threw off the Shelby tacklers to race 68 yards for a touchdown. Roose's placement failed to clear the goal posts.

A drive of 50 yards with Bennie Lay, Jim Reed, Keiser and Bill Thompson carrying the ball netted the Whippets their second score. Thompson hit the line to score from the four-yard marker.

Before the first period ended, Willard came back to score on a 20-yard pass from McDowell to Alford, who raced the remaining 20 yards to score. A pass from McDowell to Haynes was good for the extra point making the score 14 to 13.

Another long drive in the second period netted the Whippets a third touchdown with Lay crossing the goal line from the Willard one-yard stripe. Jones' placement was good. Score, 21 to 13.

During the half intermission, the Whippet band of 47 pieces formed several formations and played music.

Sandusky Tops New London, 12-0

NEW LONDON — Lady-luck frowned on the New London Wildcats here last night when they dropped a 12 to 0 football game to Sandusky St. Mary's.

The Wildcats fumbled the ball on their own eight yard line in the first quarter and Sandusky recovered. Bob Gerhardt, right half, plunged through center for the score.

In the fourth quarter a 'Cats aerial was intercepted on the New London 45 and Ackerman ran it back to the 15. It was Gerhardt again around left end for the second touchdown.

Dodgers Defeat Reds, 5 to 3; Trail Cards by Only One Game

By JOE REICHLER, AP Sports Writer.

National League President Ford Frick announced today that in the event the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals finish the regular season in a tie for first place, there will be a three-game post season playoff between the two contenders.

Not until the deadlock becomes a fact, however, will Frick name a playing site, which in all likelihood will be a neutral field.

Naturally such a situation would involve the setting back of the world series, perhaps a full week. Scheduled to start Wednesday, Oct. 2, in a National league park, the fall classic probably would be pushed back to Oct. 9, with the Oct. 2 date given over to the Cards and Dodgers.

The battling Brooks today were only one game behind the Cards, confident that they can catch the Redbirds at the final pole.

The Dodgers move to Boston today for a series of three games, culminating in tomorrow's double header. Then they shift back to Ebbets' field for a final week of play against the Philadelphia Phillies and the Braves, with Thursday and Friday off.

The Cards, idle yesterday, begin a three-game series in Chicago today and return to St. Louis to tackle the Reds twice before closing out the season with a three-game set with the Cubs.

Brooklyn came from behind to defeat the Reds 5-3 yesterday. Trailing 2-0 in the last half of the fifth, the Brooks garnered their first run off Johnny Vander Meer in 29 innings on Joe Medwick's run-producing poke, and then Dixie Walker came through with a three-run homer to climax a four-run inning.

Fredericktown, Bellville Tie, 0-0

BELLVILLE — Bellville and Fredericktown battled to a scoreless deadlock here yesterday afternoon.

Possessing a decided weight advantage, Fredericktown drove to the Bellville eight-yard line in the third quarter only to lose the ball on downs. Jim Gleeson's 65-yard boot put Bellville out of danger.

The home club threatened in the fourth quarter when they marched to the 10-yard stripe. Don Walker Bellville fullback, was an offensive and defensive bulwark.

Each term made seven first downs.

LAUNCH DRIVE

Chinese Report Offensive By Nationalists Under Way.

PEIPING —(AP)— Chinese military sources today reported the government launched its offensive against Kalgan by attacking Communist held Nankou, a Peiping-Suiyuan railroad pass through the great wall, 70 miles northwest of Peiping.

The report could not be confirmed because of the government's blackout on official news of its Kalgan offensive.

Meanwhile, government newspapers opened the type of propaganda campaign that usually precedes an offensive. After reporting for several days that the Communists had lifted their long siege of Tatung, the papers today carried dispatches stating flatly that the siege had not been lifted and government troops therefore were forced to attack Kalgan, the Communists' principal North China military base.

the meat scarcity which followed return of price lids ordered by the board.

Thompson pointed out that the situation now is this: The board cannot, under the new OPA law, initiate a move for decontrol.

Meanwhile OPA agreed to further discussion next week of protests by restaurant men against returning to June 30 price levels for meat meals despite increases permitted all other meat sellers.

In order to increase meat supplies for hospitals, asylums, orphanages and prisons OPA directed meat suppliers to sell these institutions the same percentages as in 1944, when meat was rationed.

Telegraphers Strike Looms

Clarke said Payne notified him that all negotiations have been broken off, including resort to arbitration and sessions on job classification.

"Despite our demand that the company send representatives cloaked with full authority to bind the company, R. E. Berthold, company director of industrial relations, and Atty. Gailliard stated neither they nor company President Joseph L. Egan had authority to change the board of directors' ultimatum that we must take the risk of any cut that may be made by the wage stabilization board," Payne's telegram said.

Clarke explained that a government fact-finding board had recommended that Western Union pay a wage raise of 16½ cents per hour, retroactive to June 2, but that the company had refused to grant the wage boost unless the union would accept full responsibility for any wage cut ordered by WSB and also guarantee not to raise the wage question again until after Jan. 1, 1948.

Seek Suitor of Slain Librarian

BRYAN—(UP)—Sheriff H. A. Barnes today said he believed the fatal stabbing and clubbing of pretty Emily Abernathy, 32, Bryan librarian, "a case of personal vengeance."

Meanwhile police sought a former suitor for questioning in connection with the death of the librarian, whose body was stabbed at least 22 times Thursday night by an unknown assailant, who apparently left a fingerprint and a footprint at the scene of the crime.

Receives Money—The fifth distribution of gasoline excise tax money, amounting to $7,200, has been received from the state auditor's office, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe reported today. The money is to be distributed in $400 allotments to each of the county's 18 townships.

Cited After Accident—Arlan Rose, of Nova, R. D. 1, charged with failing to yield right-of-way, was ordered to appear in traffic court Wednesday. The Rose car collided with one driven by Nettie C. Shauck, Mansfield, R. D. 3, last night on North Main street, police said.

Seven Proves Unlucky—Seven apparently is an unlucky number for E. H. Hoffman, 191 Park avenue east. He told police that clothing stolen from his car last night included seven pairs of socks, seven sets of underwear and seven towels. Also taken, he said, were three work shirts and a pair of work pants for a total value of $15 in stolen articles. The theft occurred sometime before midnight on Park avenue east.

Lippmann — Today and Tomorrow

AT ZURICH, the world has heard once again, and in all its deep sagacity and penetration and grandeur, the voice of Winston Churchill. He will not be heard truly at once above what he called the babel of voices, among the victors.

It will take longer still for his proposals to be accepted by statesmen who, lacking his great conception of how peace is to be made, have taken positions which they are afraid to change, who, like men clinging to a ledge of rock, dare not move, or even let any one speak to them, for fear of falling into the abyss.

Yet, Mr. Churchill was addressing them and he has, I believe, showed them the way up toward the board and solid ground.

The first reactions from the capitals, even the first news reports do not take sufficiently into account the central and controlling principle of Mr. Churchill's address. His words about the unity of Europe, about a partnership between France and Germany, about an end to retribution and for a blessed act of oblivion, do not stand alone. They are not the moralizing of a man who has forgotten the German problem in Europe, and in a mood of lazy idealism is proposing to forgive and forget.

"The structure of the United States of Europe must," he said, "be well and truly built," if it is to bring these blessed consequences. And how is it to be well and truly built? When the ancient states and principalities of Germany, newly joined together into a federal system, "can take their individual place among the United States of Europe." This is the keystone of the arch which Mr. Churchill wishes to construct.

If we put Mr. Churchill's speech next to M. Molotov's declaration of July 10 and Mr. Byrnes' Stuttgart address of Sept. 6, the differences are striking. Mr. Churchill offers the Germans a great position in Europe on condition that the Reich shall not be reconstructed as a unitary state under the central and sovereign power of a government in Berlin.

It is not a Germany reunited as it was from Bismarck to Hitler that is to be welcomed back into the European family. It is a Germany so much federalized that the states may take their "individual place" among the United States of Europe.

M. Molotov, on the other hand, made his appeal to the Pan-Germans, who include the Communists and indeed the greater part of the well-meaning social democrats, by inveighing against that very federation and decentralization which is the fundamental condition of the Churchill proposal. Mr. Byrnes, though he spoke of a federal Germany, did not unfortunately, make it the primary condition of the reunification of Germany, and in fact allowed himself to argue that Germany should be reunited under a Berlin government before it was decentralized. Yet all experience shows that once a country has been centralized, the central government will never sincerely decentralize it.

Like all genuinely constructive proposals, Mr. Churchill's does not depend on immediate and universal consent. That is why it is not a utopian dream. It is quite within the power of Great Britain, France and the United States, and in no sense a violation of their agreements with Russia, to proceed to reorganize their two-thirds of Germany so that it can be fitted into a United States of Europe. As long as they keep open to the German states in the Russian zone the invitation to join the German federation, as long as they offer equal membership to all European states "the council of Europe," they will not, unless Moscow itself insists upon it, be constituting a western bloc.

The supreme practical advantage of the federal principle, applied to Germany and then to Europe, is that a federal system can begin with a few states. It does not require unanimous consent at the beginning, though its ultimate goal is unity within diversity. This was once understood by the Americans in Germany, though in fact its over-riding importance has been lost sight of recently.

Mr. Churchill is one of the few men who really do shape the course of history. He was the decisive influence, as Europeans who read the Fulton speech realized better than most of us here, in determining the American policy to lead the resistance to the expansion of the Soviet Union. The Zurich address is not perhaps a reversal of the Fulton speech but it does most profoundly reflect which has developed between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Work on Vet Housing Project Scheduled to Start Sept. 30

With negotiations completed for the lease of the second of two veterans' housing sites in Mansfield, the Federal Public Housing authority today had ordered construction of 50 temporary vet apartments to begin Sept. 30.

W. B. Ford, chairman of the Mansfield Housing Authority, said that a Grace street site, between Dewey avenue and Cherry street, has been leased to the authority by John Conard for $360 a year.

The authority has possession of the eight-lot property for the duration of the emergency plus two years but can terminate it at its discretion, Ford said.

The county commissioners have leased a Diamond and Hedges streets lot at no cost for five years for 26 of the 50 apartments. Balance of the units will be located at the Grace street site.

Ford has announced that the government's order to proceed with construction Sept. 30 includes a Dec. 28 completion date.

Meanwhile, Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins ruled today that county commissioners may hire such assistants as they deem necessary in expending their shares of the six million-dollar state veterans emergency housing appropriation. Richland county's share, $64,149, has already been received.

OFFER SCHOOL BONDS FOR SALE IN 5 DISTRICTS

Boards Take Advantage of Favorable Market to Sell Issues.

More than $780,000 worth of bonds are being marketed by five school districts of the county school system in order to take advantage of the favorable bond market.

Despite the "almost impossible" current building conditions, the five boards of education thought it best to sell the securities in order to obtain the relatively low interest rates of today and to begin paying the bonds off now when taxpayers have more money, County Schools Supt. Boyd Robinson said.

The bond issues, passed by the voters in the elections of last fall and spring, will finance new school plants which will liquidate 18 one and two-room schools in the county system and improve other buildings.

Big Madison Issue.

Largest of the offerings is that in the Madison township school program. There the issue is $380,000 worth of bonds to finance construction of new elementary buildings at Woodville and Lincoln Heights and additions to the high school and the East Mansfield elementary buildings. Bond bids must be received by Clerk Harold F. Tingley by noon of Oct. 16.

Details of other offerings are:

Springfield township, $120,000, for addition to present building. Bond bids must be received by Vance Clever by noon, Oct. 15.

Bellville, $120,000, for addition to present building. Bond bids due Oct. 17.

Union rural, $120,000, for addition to present building. Bid must be received by H. S. Pittenger by noon, Oct. 15.

Mifflin, $48,780, for new elementary building. Bids must be received by noon, Oct. 17.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT — By Robert L. Ripley

'Philosopher of Folly' Was Close to Many Mansfielders

Many Mansfielders who have read Ted Robinson's Philosopher of Folly column for years—and several who have contributed to the column—learned with regret today of the death of the Cleveland Plain Dealer columnist in Provincetown, Mass.

Mr. Robinson died suddenly Friday afternoon at his summer home on Cape Cod after a heart attack. He was born Edwin Meade Robinson in Lima, Ind., and began his career as a school teacher. Later he entered newspaper work and eventually came to the Cleveland Plain Dealer where he became a columnist and literary editor.

In his writing as a columnist, Mr. Robinson had accepted a group of about 600 contributors, whose writings were given daily space in his column. There were a number of Mansfielders among this group. One of them was Rev. Milton Nicols, former pastor of the Grace Episcopal church here, who wrote under the name of "Clarice."

Because of his wit, his geniality and his ability to turn a homely phrase into excellent verse, Mr. Robinson became a favorite with Ohio audiences. Mansfield's reaction to his talks—they were too informal to be called lectures—was perhaps best expressed in an article which ran in the May 12, 1927, issue of the old Mansfield Journal.

"He is not a lecturer in any sense of the word," the article said, "has no definite subject upon which to discourse; rather, he rambles from one pleasant thought to another, always promising, however, to get back to his subject—whatever that is. His manner of speaking borders on the laconic; his wit never seems intentional and his humor lacks all trace of self-consciousness."

He had talked to a group of Mansfield women. The article went on to say, "He said last evening that he would not start his talk by paying the club members and their guests compliments just because they were women and, besides, he could see no reason for throwing bouquets into a garden of flowers.

"He expressed his approval of the modern woman, her frankness of speech and conduct, her clothing. Her clothing reminded him, he said, of a barbed-wire fence; it protected the property but did not obstruct the view."

3 SENTENCES

New London Man Gets Triple Term for Forgery.

ASHLAND—Found guilty on three charges of forgery in common pleas court today, Pfc. Gerald Barnes, 22, of New London, was sentenced to three 1-to-20 year terms, to run concurrently, in the Mansfield Reformatory.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge H. E. Culbertson recommended parole when expedient.

AWOL from Chanute Field, Ill., when apprehended, Barnes was indicted by the Grand Jury on Sept. 3 charged with forging four checks totalling $148.16. Army authorities waived jurisdiction and turned him over to civil authorities.

Bowers Heads Marine League

George W. Bowers today had been elected commandant of the Richland Detachment, Marine Corps League to succeed Roy Wilkins.

The committee was also responsible for last night's program of games, contests and music.

Mansfielders may soon be seeing a former resident of the area on the movie screen. Word from Beverly Hills, Calif., today stated that Phyllis Colby, blond former Galion resident, has been given a screen test by Orson Welles which has resulted in several attractive offers from motion picture companies." Miss Colby, whose picture appeared in The News-Journal several weeks ago when she was cast in "Angel Street" with Francis Lederer, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armin Hornstein. A student of drama at Yale university, Miss Colby is under contract with the Yale playhouse and appeared with Lederer in the Clinton Playhouse, Clinton, Conn., version of "Angel Street." WARNS ON LEAVES—

With the official coming of fall, comes an unofficial go-ahead signal for the burning of leaves. But you can't burn 'em on sidewalks or streets. It's contrary to a city ordinance, according to Fire Chief L. J. Steele. It's also a fire hazard, he says. Only legal means for getting rid of summer's green is by burning it in a closed container, the chief warns.

BIG TOYS—

Sloane avenue residents were heartened late last night. The rumble of heavy motors seemed to indicate that crews were working overtime to complete the paving of that street. But it wasn't that. Little boys, curious about the workings of paving machines, had started the engines humming. A call to police and the job contractor brought a halt to the roaring motors. The boys had disappeared.

Seldom do you hear of a woman shunning sheer hose in favor of some other commodity, but it actually happened in Mansfield today.

Gathered in front of a bank were a group of women who, from all effects, were talking over the meat "situation." During the conversation, an acquaintance of one of the women bustled up excitedly with the news that one of the department stores had nylons on sale.

"To heck with the nylons," one of the group said. "I want to know where you can get meat!"

Picket lines around the Willow Run plant where Kaiser-Frazer automobiles are produced raised the number of idle in Detroit's automotive labor disputes to 60,000 today, and threats of walkouts hung over foreign and domestic communications and transport.

Production at Willow Run was halted for the first time since the plant went into civilian operation.

The Washtenaw County Building Trades council, charging that the management hired CIO men to do work properly belonging to the AFL, threw picket lines around the plant. About 4,500 CIO workers refused to cross the picket lines and auto workers went home.

Make No Progress.

A dispute between CIO auto workers and the Briggs Manufacturing company, affecting directly only 1,800 men, was no closer to settlement, and it made 55,000 other United Automobile Workers members idle because of layoffs. Briggs is a supplier to the automaking plants.

An AFL national bargaining committee notified Secretary of Labor Lewis Schwellenbach that the Western Union company was making "impossible" demands in contract negotiations with representatives of 50,000 Western Union workers. The committee said that it could only break off negotiations and "proceed to take action through other means."

Schwellenbach promised an early decision on how the government would try to head off another maritime strike slated for Sept. 30. Two CIO shipping unions, both seeking pay raises, reported they were making little progress in negotiations and asked him to intervene. Their contracts expire Sept. 30.

New York City limped along on partial truck service. A truck drivers' strike which for days threatened the food and essential goods' supply of the city was disappearing only by degrees, and more than 6,000 drivers were idle. Possibility of a recurrence of a general trucking strike was denied, however, by AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters' officials.

TB SANATORIUM LEASE SIGNED

County Pays $1,000 More Per Year for Building.

County commissioners today reached an agreement with the owners of the county tuberculosis sanatorium on Lexington avenue to renew the lease on the building at a yearly rental fee of $6,000.

Without any legal title to the building since July when the old two-year lease expired, commissioners had met frequently with Mrs. Barbara J. Nichols, executrix of the T. Amos Jones estate which owns the building, and her representatives in an effort to reach an agreement.

C. L. Shoup, chairman of the commissioners, said the formal lease is being drawn up and is expected to be signed within the next few days.

The old lease charged the county $5,000 per year, a reduction from the $6,000 per year fee which was in effect for the previous five years.

"They have agreed to pave the drive into the grounds as partial compensation for the increase in the rental charge. That was badly needed to control dust entering the ground floor when the wind was in the north," Shoup said.

The new agreement calls for lease of the property until the county can move into its proposed new $300,000 hospital which is to be built on State Route 39 southeast of Mansfield.
